

Scholarships for Radiologic Technology Students:

Students who would like to apply for Radiologic Technology, Health Science and other scholarships must complete the general scholarship application on the SRJC Scholarships website through AwardSpring. Completing the general scholarship application will also show students if they are eligible for additional campus wide scholarships, as well as Rad Tech scholarships.

Applications are accepted January - March 2 & August - October 1. Some scholarships are still open outside of these dates. These exact dates can change from year to year, so check with the Financial Aid office.

There are scholarships available in the fall and spring that are just for Rad Tech and Health Science Students. There are over 600 scholarship opportunities available in all. One application can connect you with all of the opportunities for which you are eligible. All students should apply, whether or not you have financial need. – You are not eligible for any of these scholarships unless you apply through AwardSpring.

Stop by the Financial Aid Office in Plover Hall if you need help with your application.
